THE PRESIDENT

The administrative guidance of President Grover E. Murray, now in his third year at Texas Tech, continues to lead the institution in its growth and development . . . in research, education and public service.

Among the major advances during his tenure are opening of the Tech School of Law and the expansion of the Education Department to "school" status.

The International Center for Arid and Semi-Arid Land Studies, a brain-child of Dr. Murray's has achieved international stature and has enhanced Texas Tech's reputation in the field of research and public service.

Only this year Dr. Murray was appointed to the Board of Directors of the National Science Foundation, one of the highest honors that can be bestowed upon an educator.

Tech's eighth president, a geologist of international note, is chairman of the U. S. National Committee on Geology, a member of the Board of Directors of the American Society for Oceanography and president of the Gulf Universities Research Corp.

Dr. Murray received his Bachelor of Science degree from the University of North Carolina in 1937, his Master of Science from Louisiana State University in 1939 and his doctorate from the same institution in 1942. Before joining Tech, he was vice president for academic affairs at LSU.

His administration at Tech has been marked by a rejuvenation of ideas, methods and procedures which has brought national acclaim to this youthful and growing university.

The students, faculty and administration of Texas Tech welcome you to our campus.

If this is your first visit to Tech, we hope you will take time to tour the university and see one of the finest educational facilities in the state. For those of you who have visited with us before, we encourage you to see the tremendous growth and development of Tech which change our campus almost daily.

Our intercollegiate athletic program, an integral part of the well rounded activities of this university, is a point of pride for all Texas Techsians. The young men who compete always reflect credit not only on our university, but also on the Southwest Conference and the State of Texas.

We hope you enjoy this contest, and that we will see you again and again at Tech.

Grover E. Murray

"... a college education is no longer a luxury we hope we can afford our children. It is a necessity of life."

TEXAS TECH BASKETBALL

Texas Tech home crowds consistently lead the Southwest Conference in attendance figures. Also, several thousand more can watch closed circuit telecasts piped to the adjoining Auditorium. Texas Tech, with the University of Texas, March 2, 1961, set the present SWC one-game record of 10,380.

First college game in the Coliseum was the Kansas State contest of 1956.

All 7,500 of the permanent seats concentric to the oval arena are theater-type. Rather than crowd an additional thousand or so seats into the Coliseum, planners allowed sufficient leg room to permit a person to remain seated while others pass in front of him.

The arena itself is 208 feet long and 104 feet wide with semi-circular ends. The room is dome shaped and supported by a system of three hinged arch trusses. (No poles or supports mar the fan's view.) The high point of the roof is 92 feet above the arena floor.

Besides the scarlet and black trim of the maple court, there is additional color furnished by the seats that are in seven different colors — glacial green, fiesta tan, yellow, bittersweet, gray, scarlet, and blue.

Adjacent to the Auditorium-Coliseum is a lighted, all-weather parking area with room for 1,900 cars.

Texas Tech's first basketball season was spent in the Aggie Judging Pavilion. Next, games were played in Tech Gym. The not-so-affectionately-dubbed "Old Barn," with a myriad of support poles marring the view, could crowd about 2,000 fans onto its bleacher stands.

AN indicator of a university's breadth and purpose is the number of academic programs from which students may choose. At Texas Tech there are 151 choices at the bachelor's, master's and doctor's levels. There are 82 bachelor's programs, 49 master's, and 20 doctorates.

THERE are eight schools — Agriculture, Arts and Sciences, Business Administration, Engineering, Home Economics, Graduate, Education and Law.

AT the bachelor's level alone, eight new programs have been added in the School of Agriculture in less than a decade, 11 in the School of Arts and Sciences and one each in the schools of Business Administration and Engineering.

AT the master's level, the School of Arts and Sciences has the largest increase with seven, followed by the School of Agriculture with five.

THE School of Arts and Sciences also leads in the number of new doctoral offerings—seven—followed by the School of Engineering with six.

RED RAIDER COACHES

Gene Gibson, starting his eighth season as Texas Tech head coach, expects his Red Raiders to return to the run-and-shoot style of basketball which has been Tech's trademark in the past.

In seven seasons his record is Southwest Conference competition (including a special playoff game) reads 66 victories and 43 defeats for a winning average of 60 per cent.

Six lettermen will return along with three starters, but Gibson says that all positions on the 1968-69 team will be up for grabs. Only two men were lost to last year's ball club and Gibson will welcome a talented group of sophomores from an unbeaten freshman team. A definite lack of speed and quickness hampered the 1967-68 Red Raiders.

The Texas Tech coach is known as a man who delights in accepting a tough challenge.

For example, in his senior year at Texas Tech, 1949-50, Gibson, standing just 6-4, was transferred to center and challenged by his coach, Polk Robison, to keep alive the school's tradition of producing all-Border Conference centers.

Gibson came through like a champ. He did it again 12 years later as Robison moved up to athletic director after guiding the Red Raiders to their first Southwest Conference title. When the Red Raiders shared the crown with Southern Methodist in 1962, it was the first time for a first-year coach to win

CHARLES D. (Charley) LYNCH
Assistant Varsity Coach

even a share of a crown. Tech downed SMU in a special playoff and defeated Air Force Academy in the National Collegiate first round.

Most of that team graduated and the Raiders tied for fifth in 1963. In 1964, however, Texas Tech rose to second place, handing champion Texas A&M its only conference loss.

In 1965 the Red Raiders finished two full games in front but were forced to relinquish claims when it was discovered, with three games to go, that a player used in six of the wins had been scholastically ineligible. In 1966 the Red Raiders broke even with both foes ahead of them in the standing while finishing third themselves. Hit hard by illness, injuries and graduation in 1967, the Red Raiders finished strong in Southwest Conference play for fifth place.

Gibson is a home-grown product, a graduate of Lakeview High School in nearby Hall County and of Texas Tech. Following Army duty in the South Pacific, Gibson played four years of varsity basketball for the Raiders.

After coaching at Leverett's Chapel in East Texas in 1950-52, Gibson returned to the South Plains as Snyder High School coach. He joined the Texas Tech staff as Polk Robison's assistant after Snyder tied for the district title in 1953-54.

Gibson is married to the former Jonona Boyett of Fort Worth. They have three sons and a daughter.

Charles D. (Charley) Lynch is in his seventh year as assistant coach. Lynch was an all-around athlete at Sudan High School and at Texas Tech, where he lettered from 1957-59 and was named to some all-SWC teams.

Freshman basketball coach Gerald Coppedge, who has compiled a 29-5 record the past three years, will begin his fourth season as Picador coach.

EDUCATIONAL AND ATHLETIC SCHOLARSHIP PROGRAM

Join the Red Raider Club . . . We want your support regardless of amount of your contribution . . .

ALL CONTRIBUTIONS ARE TAX DEDUCTIBLE.

Instituted in 1958, this program provides this year to 138 young men with athletic and academic abilities the opportunity for a college education. The program is supervised by the faculty sub-committee on athletic scholarships and is supported by the Red Raider Club membership.

Enthusiastically welcomed by business leaders over the Southwest and other friends of the College, including Texas Tech alumni, the program carries the endorsement of athletic governing bodies and provides a stabilizing athletic program for Texas Technological College.

your support is recognized in Bronze Plaques

A separate engraved name plate for each sponsored scholarship appears on each of the Appreciation Plaques in recognition of the valued support of Texas Tech's athletic program by individuals, community Red Raider Clubs and business enterprises.

Two handsome plaques are displayed on the campus—in the Athletic Department's lobby located at Jones Stadium and at the main entrance of Lubbock Municipal Coliseum. Each plaque, 44"x60" in size, presents the names of 81 sponsors.

RED RAIDER FUNDS ARE USED TO FURNISH QUALIFYING ATHLETES WITH ROOM, BOARD, TUITION FEES AND BOOKS

Red Raider Club members have the satisfaction of knowing they are helping worthy young men obtain a college education and helping build an athletic program which the college deserves. For you to participate, you may request details from the club's executive vice president, Leete Jackson, Citizens Tower, or Box 456, Lubbock, Texas or call POrter 2-8680.

AS A MEMBER

you will receive each week during football season, and at intervals throughout the year, a letter, reporting on Tech's athletic program. A pressbook, published by the Athletic Department for sports editors of press, radio and television, is distributed to members of the club. Members have game ticket priorities, attend the "quarterback" luncheons each Monday during football season and the All-Sports Banquet held in the spring to honor all Tech athletes.

Partial View of Loyola Field House, 6,523 Capacity.

Loyola University, New Orleans, a Jesuit institution of higher learning, is located on St. Charles Ave.

Loyola of today started when the Jesuits came to New Orleans in 1847—their purpose to establish a college of liberal arts and sciences. In 1849 the Jesuits founded the College of the Immaculate Conception and this was expanded into the University in the fall of 1911.

Loyola of 1969 has grown into a University of some 4465 students with the following schools and colleges: Arts and Sciences; Business Administration; Dentistry; Law; and Music. There is also a graduate division and evening division. Loyola's 6,523-capacity field house, dedicated in 1954, is the scene of the Sugar Bowl basketball tournament, an event in which the Wolfpack has taken part on five occasions.

The Very Rev. Homer R. Jolley, S.J., has been president of Loyola since January of 1966.

The Rev. Joseph Molloy is serving as vice-president for Student Affairs and the director of athletics will report through him to the president. A native of Washington, D.C., Father Molloy was ordained a priest at Loyola's Holy Name of Jesus Church in 1947. He received an A.B. degree in history from St. Louis University, St. Louis, Mo., in 1938 and a degree in theology from St. Mary's College, St. Mary's Kan., in 1947. Following his ordination, Father Molloy served as an instructor in theology at Loyola from 1947-51 and as athletic director from 1954-59. (Also asst. prof. theology 1954-59).

During his career he also served as assistant pastor at various churches in Texas, New Mexico and Florida. He

LOYOLA COACHES

A man who has dedicated most of his waking hours to the game of basketball has taken over the task of building Loyola's roundball fortunes.

Bob Luksta, assistant coach at DePaul University for the last six years and someone highly successful in Chicago's competitive Catholic high school league, brings a rare dedication to his new job.

A 1952 graduate of DePaul, Luksta played for three years under veteran coach Ray Meyer and, as a senior, was president of the Monogram Club. After touring for three years with the Harlem Globetrotter entourage, he began a three-year stint as coach at St. Mel's in Chicago's Catholic High School league and tutored it to a championship in his second season.

In 1958, he moved to Gordon Tech where he won three championships in four years. He returned to DePaul in 1962, compiling an 111-30 record as freshman coach while also serving as varsity assistant and chief scout. In 1964, he received his master's degree in Education.

Luksta is proudest of the 1962 league title he won with an eight-man squad at Gordon Tech. Among the players developed by Luksta during his high school coaching days were Frank Quillici, Minnesota Twins infielder; Dan Palombizio, who broke the frosh scoring record at Houston University in 1959; Cas Banaszek, tackle for the San Francisco 49ers, Mark Zubor, one of the leading scorers in University of Wisconsin history.

A lifelong resident of Cicero, Ill., Luksta attended St. Phillip High in Chicago where he played for two years under Bill Shay. "Bill was one of the great influences in my coaching life," says Bob. "He left his mark on me and I think it's because of him I entered coaching.

"I was also fortunate to play under Clem Naughton at St. Philip where we won the all-Chicago championship. At DePaul, it was a great experience playing for, and coaching under Coach Meyer, an excellent technician and fundamentalist."

Luksta, who developed ten players now in the high school coaching ranks, is quick to say "basketball has meant everything to me.

"I have played the game on every continent," he says, "It has been my life. Needless to say, this is my biggest challenge but one I willingly accept."

It took COL. ROBERT SABOLYK, U.S. Army, retired, 27 years to tack on the last word, and, on September 1, 1967, he embarked on a new career as dean of men and director of athletics at Loyola.

The former halfback at North Carolina State closed out the Army chapter with a 12-month tour in Vietnam where he was deputy commander of the 18th Military Police Brigade, an outfit numbering more than 5000 men.

From 1963 to 1966, Col. Sabolyk served as instructor of military science at Loyola and was in charge of the University's ROTC program. He was a product of the same program at North Carolina State where he played for Hunk Anderson, the man who succeeded Knute Rockne at Notre Dame.

Meet ANNE BLACKBURN, senior elementary Education major from Dallas.

Anne is social chairman for Mortar Board, a member of the Association for Childhood Education, and Angel Flight.

She is president of Tech College Panhellenic and second vice president of Kappa Kappa Gamma.

Anne has been on the Dean's List every semester that she has attended Tech.

After graduation Anne plans to teach school.

Piggly Wiggly is pleased to salute Tech leader . . . ANNE BLACKBURN.

Piggly Wiggly

Amazing new discovery.

If you're planning a big vacation soon, may we suggest a spot very few Americans seem to know about.

America.

Chances are, there are just as many things in America that you haven't seen as there are in Europe or South America.

And wouldn't you feel like a dummy if you went to Europe and some Frenchman asked you what New Orleans was like during Mardi Gras and you couldn't tell him.

This doesn't mean you should never visit Europe or South America. You should.

But not until you visit New Orleans during Mardi Gras and about a million other places right here in America that most Frenchmen would give the Eiffel Tower to see.

Braniff International

For the taste you never get tired of.

SPOTLIGHT AT

The strength of a university is found in its faculty.

A man on Texas Tech campus who knows a lot more about insurance than is put into textbooks is Associate Professor of Finance Burl M. ABEL.

He has been a life underwriter, has taken special training in life insurance management and has completed the fire and casualty adjusters examination. Four of the last seven summers he has done research work for insurance companies.

A Chartered Life Underwriter himself, Abel earlier this year received an award from the Society of Chartered Life Underwriters for 10 years of teaching CLU courses. The classes are part of the group's program of continuing education for professionalization.

Abel took bachelor's and master's degrees in business at the University of Oklahoma, where he also did additional graduate work. He has studied toward a Ph.D. degree at the University of Washington in Seattle.

A Tech faculty member since 1955, Abel is advisor to about 100 students enrolled in the insurance and real estate option of the finance major in business administration.

Before coming to Lubbock, he had been dean at San Angelo Junior College, at Multnomah College in Portland, Ore., and at Wetumka Junior College in Oklahoma; a teaching fellow at the University of Washington, associate professor at Oklahoma College for Women and superintendent of Draughton's Business University in Oklahoma City.

Personal and family finances is the theme for a book which Abel and Dr. Charles E. Wade, also a Tech faculty member, are writing. It is scheduled for publication in 1969.

Abel is serving his 10th year as president of the Texas Tech Credit Union, an organization which has grown to include 1,042 members with $600,000 in shares under his leadership.

He is a member of Delta Chi Fraternity and of Phi Theta Kappa, Phi Alpha Kappa and Beta Gamma Sigma and has served as a lieutenant governor of Kiwanis International in Oklahoma. He is a deacon at the First Baptist Church, where he recently was named chairman of the insurance committee.

Two endeavors for International Center for Arid and Semi-Arid Land Studies are providing new outlets for the talents of DR. J. WILKES BERRY, associate professor of English.

He was recently named manuscript editor for the center and is chairman of a committee contacting prospective exhibitors in the International Center's Focus on the Arts.

As manuscript editor, he reads and makes mechanical corrections on all materials submitted for publication with ICASALS funds. To be published this year are a number of articles and monographs.

A monograph is a writing which is shorter than a book but longer than an article and is published under its own cover.

The Focus on Arts, to extend from January through May, will feature presentations of the art and cultures of the arid and semi-arid lands of the world. Scheduled are exhibits, musical performances and special events, with a different sector of the world being spotlighted each month.

Chairman of sophomore English, Berry specializes in literature of the English Renaissance and has published several articles on Shakespeare. Earlier this year a lyric he wrote was chosen for publication in "Descant," the Texas Christian University literary journal.

Currently he is compiling a bibliographical survey on Mary Austin, whom he describes as "a Southwestern poet, novelist, dramatist and eccentric."

A Tech faculty member since 1964, Berry is a native of Fort Worth. He received his B.A. degree from Abilene Christian College and his M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from Rice University.

A good portrait is like an exciting moment in basketball. It lasts forever. It preserves a precious moment for eternity.

Reeves catches exactly that moment. Or if you're in need of legal photography, commercial shots, anything in the way of engraving . . . let Reeves do it.

Barbara Lee Reick, 18-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Reick of Brownfield, is a Texas Tech freshman.

Spirit and Service Are Hallmarks of Saddle Tramps

Those red-shirted Texas Techsians whom you see at so many important occasions on campus are the Saddle Tramps, the institution's most service-minded organization.

They spend man-hours by the hundreds leading cheers at sports events, escorting Tech and visiting athletic teams, guiding tours of parents and visitors on campus, and giving the red carpet treatment to visiting dignitaries.

And when the occasion arises, they are appearing at high schools, junior colleges and civic luncheons—on their own time—telling the story of Texas Tech to all who will listen.

Many of the 90 members of the 32-year-old Saddle Tramp organization spend all or part of their Easter vacation spreading the word about Texas Tech and its educational facilities. They visited 21 schools last spring.

What do the Saddle Tramps do for Tech's athletic program?

Athletic Director Polk Robison said, "I know of no other organization which better typifies the true spirit of Texas Tech."

The Saddle Tramps date back to 1936 when Arch Lamb, now a Lubbock County commissioner, recognized a need for such a spirit organization to channel the activities of Tech's most ardent student boosters, and he served as the first president.

Two persons hold honorary life membership, W. Conner Cole, manager of the Tech Bookstore and recently honored for more than 41 years of service to Tech, and Joe Winegar, manager of the Tech Stenographic Bureau.

Other honorary members are Robison, King, Basketball Coach Gene Gibson, Bruce Stark II and Dudley Johns. Winegar and Dr. Paul Woods are sponsors.

This year's officers are Bill Pittman of Gruver, president; Calvin Brints of Crosbyton, first vice president; Lyn McClellan of Gruver, second vice president; Joe Watt of Austin, secretary; and Bob Gillispie of Gruver, treasurer.

THE COURT JESTERS OF TEXAS TECH

When they are not clowning with yells and musical effects, these courtly musicians make the rafters ring with martial airs and popular melodies. This is the 10th annual appearance of THE COURT JESTERS at Red Raider home basketball games, and are directed by Dean Killion, Tech's bandmaster. The group, more than half-a-hundred, is selected from members of 'The Goin' Band from Raiderland.'
